We are living in a new century driven by knowledge and technology. We have to exploit fully the tremendous opportunities available around us. It is clearly established fact that there is very little technology that grows in isolation. We need innovators, researchers and users all together. Most contemporary developments require inputs from all these disciplines and R & D is essentially a team effort.

I would like to mention that we are here for a noble task of raising capable human resources of nation building which our country has plenty. When I say raising capable human resources I indicate such training to youth who after coming out from this college can add some contribution and value to the society.

You are the medium through which our training here, translates into such commodities which not only causes improvement of quality of life of common masses, rural poor and other population but also brings momentum into country's economy and prosperity.
